Lewis has been an instructor-trainer with Technical Diving International (TDI) since its formation in 1994. Lewis served as a member of its Training Advisory Panel until 2005 when he became director of product development for International Training, and later served as the Marketing and Communications director for TDI, Scuba Diving International (SDI) and Emergency Response Diving International (ERDI) the public safety diver certifying branch of International Training.

From 2010 until the present he works as an adventure travel, marketing, and training consultant for various clients in the public and private sectors.

In September 2015, he was named as a factory-sanctioned instructor-trainer on the SF2 rebreather by ScubaForce USA [1] And in November of that year, was appointed as a member of the College of Fellows of the Royal Canadian Geographical Society.

In February 2016, Lewis joined Rebreather Association of International Divers as an instructor-trainer, and developed that organization's cave diving program.
